The world is changing fast and policymakers on both sides of the Atlantic face a wide range of challenges; be it pushing at bay the spectra of secular stagnation, lowering inequality, defining framework to manage new technologies or addressing climate change and migration. In this third edition of the EU and US Perspectives conference series, we zoom in on four major topics and contrast the policy choices being put in place in the US and the euro area, and debate whether these will ultimately deliver sustainable outcomes.